

by Schneider Electric

Pelco Nordic

Press Release
January 22nd, 2009

Pelco FX Fire Detection system hits the UK market

Pelco Nordic launches the FX Fire Detection system that significantly improves protection for people and premises in the UK market. The Pelco Fire Detection system is a reliable tool against business interruptions due to fire. Pelco Nordic's addressable and modular Fire Detection system gives constant round-the-clock seven days a week protection against fire to ensure the safety of people and property. The early detection of an outbreak of fire is of key importance to all building owners and operators. Pelco Fire Detection system is approved by BRE (LPCB certificate).

The Pelco Fire Detection system can be used independently or as part of an integrated security system in which fire detection, intruder detection, access control, and video monitoring are combined in a single system, thereby improving workplace fire safety when compared to separate systems.

Pelco Nordic is the leading expert, manufacturer and developer of fire detection and security systems in Scandinavia. Pelco fire detection systems are developed and manufactured in Finland. The innovative product development unit successfully developed the fire detection concept based on customer needs, and now exports it to 20 countries. The Pelco Fire Detection System can be integrated with other third party security systems making easily manageable units that convey real-time data to integrated control centers.

"Launching Pelco Fire Detection system in the UK paves the way to a new market area for Pelco Nordic, multiplies its potential customer base and thus provides the company with significant growth opportunities. LPCB listing offers great potential for building Pelco Nordic into an even stronger supplier of security systems," says Bruno Falk, Export Manager of Pelco Nordic.

More information

Bruno Falk, Export Manager, Pelco Nordic, tel. +358 50 410 9758, bruno.falk@pelco.com
Gary Jacobs, Sales Manager, Fire Products, Pelco UK, tel. +44 870 220 2622, gary.jacobs@pelco.com

Pelco Nordic in brief

Pelco Nordic offers security technology applications that improve the safety of people and premises. Pelco Nordic is a leading developer and supplier of fire and security systems in Scandinavia.

We are a part of the international Schneider Electric Group. Pelco Nordic employs some 220 people and generated net sales in 2007 of EUR 53.0 million.